The Calacatta Black and Gold design is inspired by Italy's famed Calacatta marble, featuring a bold fusion of unique, deep gray patterns with splashes of gold or grayish-brown hues. The golden streaks dance across the black and gray web-like veining, creating a striking visual impact that infuses spaces with a vibrant, uplifting energy, akin to the bright sunlight casting its radiant glow onto the earth. Here, the subtle luxury of classic architecture meets modern urbanity. Natural veining connects and converses in the air, where romance and opulence exist side by side.

Paonazzo draws inspiration from a rare and now unattainable variety of Carrara marble, characterized by its exquisite hues and more intricate vein patterns than those found in traditional Calacatta marble. Against an ivory-white background, its veins resemble the branches of plum blossoms—twisting and spreading—with a spreading, pale yellow hue that brings to mind the texture of ink diffusing on paper.

Topaz derives its name from the Greek word "Topazios," meaning "to seek," reflecting the rarity of the precious yellow gemstone from Germany, also known as "Imperial Topaz." The Topaz design is inspired by the rare qualities of the gemstone, with its pale amber hue exuding the noble essence of topaz. The texture is natural and fluid, created as if by nature itself, allowing one to see the subtle gradations of the stone's markings and the gem-like interplay of colors. It speaks to the esteemed stature of topaz, carving out the beauty of its intrinsic quality.

SOFT MATTE

LAYERING

- Multimodal stone textures, stacked at multiple levels to form different texture structures.
- Not only does it have visual beauty, but it also reflects the perfect combination of technology and art.

TRANSLUCENCY

- Adopting precise dry particle surface technology to reflect light perfectly, resulting in a more transparent texture and vivid patterns. A simple and slightly matte texture, with a
- soft and eye protecting light, a delicate and warm touch, and a subtle graininess, presenting every inch of the surface with an extremely clear texture detail.

PRECISION ENGRAVING

- The design precisely captures the detailed rises and falls of the natural stone texture, replicating the realistic feel of raw elements. It uses industrial-grade precision for the first time, with tiny adjustments less than 0.05 millimeters to create an incredibly lifelike 3D effect. Every detail is carefully carved to perfection. This high level of precision also makes the textured ceramic tiles easier to clean and less likely to hold dirt.

"Transparent stacking technology" is an innovative technology that combines the texture design of ceramic tiles with optical effects to create unique visual effects.

The "Scala dei Turchi," also known as the Turkish Steps, located near Agrigento on the island of Sicily, Italy, is celebrated for its uncommonly white marl beach. This geological marvel is renowned for its sheer, pristine beauty, as a broad swath of unadulterated color bestows upon it an otherworldly allure. The white cliffs tower, confronting the crashing waves, which froth and fold into myriad snowy crests.

Covelano Bianco draws its inspiration from these white marl beaches of Sicily, where the sea's deep embrace reaches forth in staircases of snow-white, standing as a testament to the sea and stone's eternal vow. It is a depiction of nature in its most refined and absolute form, offering a vision of beauty that seems to reach beyond the very limits of the heavens.

Mandina design finds its muse in the blueprint of Italy's rare stones.

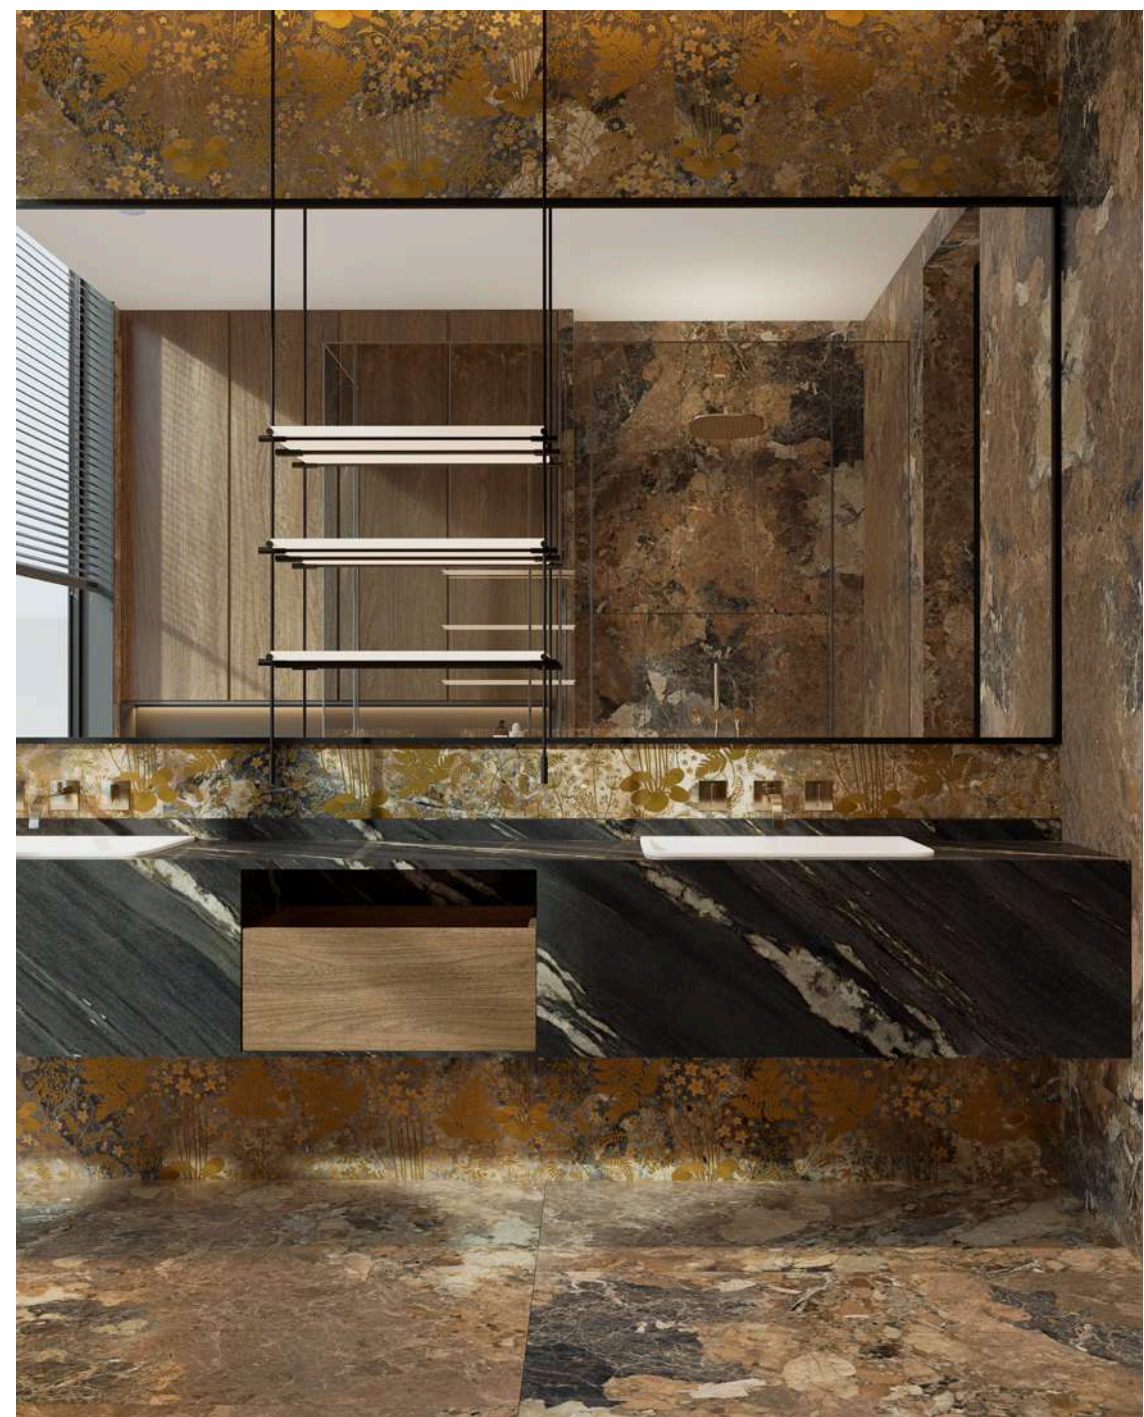

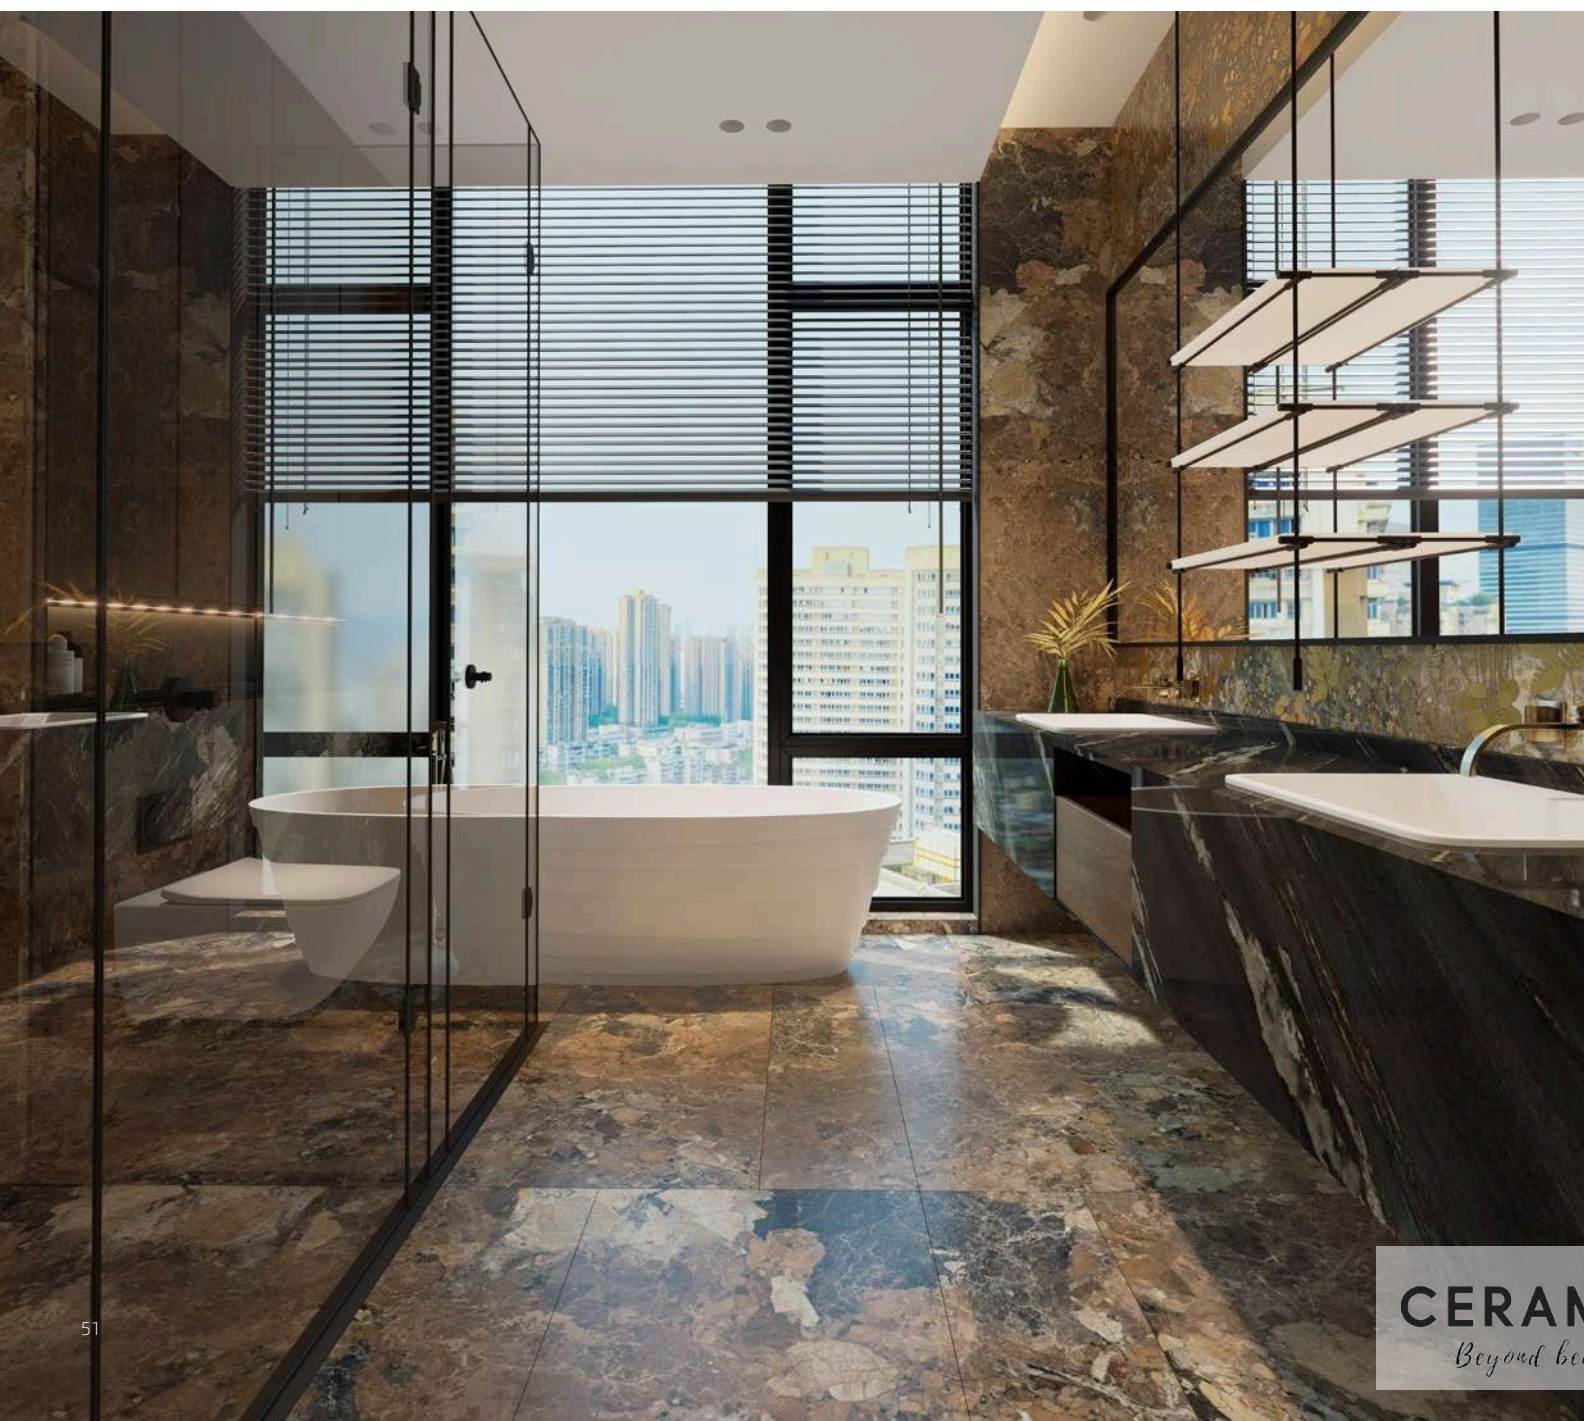

The interplay of richly colored, uniquely shaped breccia with the classic veining of marble delivers a texture that is both rugged and refined. Its deep, reddish-brown hues exude a treasured and warm aesthetic, akin to the timeless and understated elegance of the classic browns of an Hermès runway. This palette maintains its luxurious appeal amidst the ever-shifting trends of fashion, a testament to its enduring sophistication.

patterns evoke the boundless beauty of clouds adrift.

Oxford Stone is inspired by the grand landscapes and pastoral culture of Oxfordshire in England, blending the beauty of architectural design with the lifelike quality of natural stone. Its meandering patterns evoke the boundless beauty of clouds adrift, opulently capturing the raw and authentic spirit of nature. The warm, parchment-like tones of the stone hark back to the nostalgia of a medieval age, reminiscent of the ancient halls of William’s Castle. It also carries the moniker of "old money style" within the marble world, a nod to the European aristocracy whose wealth and prestige are as enduring as their ancestral heritage.
